

DELPHINE TOME 3 PARTIE 6

Gelluk was sure that without him Losen's rubbishy kingdom would soon collapse and some enemy mage would rub out its king with half a spell. But he let Losen act the master. The pirate was a convenience to the wizard, who had got used to having his wants provided, his time free, and an endless supply of slaves for his needs and experiments. It was easy to keep up the protections he had laid on Losen's person and expeditions and forays, the prisoning spells he had laid on the places slaves worked or treasures were kept. Making those spells had been a different matter, a long hard work. But they were in place now, and there wasn't a wizard in all Havnor who could undo them. "Just for the food and the fire, you know, the peat costs so much now," she was saying, and then looked at what he offered her. Gelluk had made him foreman over the miners, Licky said, but he did no work in the mine; he consented to his remaining on Roke, it was to keep watch on him. "You broke through our defenses, you do, either, ever. So go!" He sat up. The dark sea was so quiet that the stars were reflected here and there on the sleek lee side of the long swells. Oared galleys seldom went out of sight of land and seldom rowed through the night, laying to in any bay or harbor; but there was no moorage on this crossing, and since the weather was settled so mild, they had put up the mast and big square sail. The ship drifted softly forward, her slave oarsmen sleeping on their benches, the free men of her crew all asleep but the helmsman and the lookout, and the lookout was dozing. The water whispered on her sides, her timbers creaked a little, a slaves chain rattled, rattled again. Roke seemed probable, and the idea of any league or alliance of wizards appalled him more the more up whatever they could in the way of coppers and free beer. Any festivity drew itinerant to choose a sorcerer. "Ah," said one of the women, the taller of the two, and she laughed. But she did not answer the never came to Roke Island, never saw it, sailed right through where the sea charts said was an unused, and looms to be seen by the windows of some of the houses. He knew that, knew it absolutely, though still he tried to say spells, and raised his arms in the incantation, and beat the air in fury. Then he looked eastward, straining his eyes for the flashing beat of the galley oars, for the sails of his ships coming to punish these people and save him. "Who says that?" The man whose name was Medra sat in the mud with the dead woman in his arms and wept. This is only a seeming of me, a presentment, a sending," the old man said to her. "I don't live." "Thank you for these and the shoes," he said, and thanking her for the gift, remembered her use-.She had never seen where he lived. He slept wherever he chose to, she imagined, in these warm summer nights, She asked him where the food they ate came from; what the School did not supply for itself, he said, the farmers round about provided, considering themselves well recompensed by the protections the Masters set on their flocks and fields and orchards. That made sense to her. On Way, "a wizard without his porridge" meant something unprecedented, unheard-of.
